News from DPA-System: Authorised representative

In connection with the implementation of the revised WEEE2 directive and the coming into effect of the amendments in Denmark, DPA-System submits information to the affected parties about the practical implications of the amendments.

Subject:

Designation of an authorised representative (AR) in Denmark

Recipients:

Collective schemes operating in Denmark

Clarification and development of the IT system

It is now clarified with the Danish EPA, when and how producers can or must designate an authorised representative to assume their producer responsibility in Denmark (AR). Still outstanding is the software development of the IT technical solution.

On DPA-System's website it is described how the regulations should be implemented both formally and in practice, including the formal requirements to be met in connection with the transfer of legal responsibility cf. the Producer responsibility legislation.

The implementation of the provisions on the authorised representative, results in a relatively extensive modification of the data structure in the Register. Design of IT architecture and software development are ongoing, and we will inform you as soon as the IT solution is established. This work also includes similar development of the XML interface, which is established for the use of some collective schemes data transfer (elretur).

If there is a need for a meeting to get a common understanding of both the formal requirements and the purely practical IT management, DPA-System will facilitate this in early January.

DPA-System will inform you continually, as well as the website will contain the relevant information as implementation progresses.
